

No need to compile anything for my project. Visit <https://ide50-meritonibrahimi.cs50.io/> and see my project. You will be directed to sign in or register to create an account. Once done, you will redirect to the home page where you can choose a language from which and to which to translate a text you will provide to see Google's translation and Microsoft's translation. You can also click the accuracy page to input a text and have it translate from a language and to a language and back to see how well the Google and Microsoft translations stack up. You can change your password, and look at the history of your translations from the homepage. You can also read about me! You can also log out. That's my project! It's a website so pretty self explanatory.
